Collin Rowland of Rowland Fine Art

In my view, any medium of art can be a vehicle for communication. Through narrative and conceptual contemporary art I explore spirituality and prophetic notions in the hope to discover and inspire through both form and content. For me the goal is to notice the miraculous, to see beauty all around and to inspire the viewer with subtle and obvious interpretations of thought provoking concepts. To make the invisible visible.

While attending the University of Cincinnati my focus was both Fine Art and Music. For more than ten years I co-owned a band. In the midst of writing/recording, performing in dance clubs and putting on elaborate theatrical performances I gained tremendous experience as a singer/songwriter, choreographer, producer and performance artist. This experience proved to be incredibly valuable artistically in developing a unique perspective and art style.

Over the last seventeen years I have produced multiple bodies of artwork, shown in many dozens of art galleries and owned my own art gallery/studio. During this time I started and co-owned Rowland Augur Fine Art with good friend and metal-smith Daniel Augur. Throughout the eleven years of collaborating, we won multiple art awards, including the notable Sculptor Of The Year 2012 at the prestigious Art Comes Alive international art competition, as well as, multiple art festival awards and more. Out of that experience, my focus has become primarily my new body of work through Rowland Fine Art.

Now my family and I have relocated to Sarasota, Florida, building a full-scale art production studio, producing new and innovative art while working to meet the artistic needs of my clients.
